xPing - The Digital Business Card Used by Fortune 500 CEOs

xPing is an online Rolodex service. CEO's of Fortune 500 companies use it. And while I'm not the CEO of a fortune 500 company myself, I also make good use of it to keep track of business contacts from anywhere.

Its simplicity is its power and it is what makes it worth joining.

" What we are not.

xPing is not a social network, directory, or CRM system. Our only mission is to make it very easy for you to exchange business card information with anyone in the world. When you give your business card to someone, we want to be 100% certain that the other person can find you and connect with you at anytime. With our powerful search features, we know that business card exchanges that used to go to waste, are now going to be used to find the right business contact "

Udut, Kenneth I think xPing has a very strong future, especially with people who are simplicity minded or who browse the web on their cell phones. on Jan. 31 2009
