Entertainment Centers are used to house your television and many other components related to your multimedia or home theatre systems. If you are planning an entertainment center or home theatre system, we will arrange a free in-home consultation to determine the best solution for you. There are three main types of Entertainment Centers:

BUILD-IN

Built-in entertainment centers actually become part of your home. They are often used in recessed spaces and for systems that span the entire wall. The system is trimmed to the surrounding walls and sometimes the ceiling giving it a permanently installed look and feel. These units are not designed to be moved to other rooms or houses because they are typically built to specific dimensions. Built-in furniture gives a room a classic and settled feel and adds permanent value to your home/condominium.

CORNER UNITS

Corner entertainment systems give viewers the maximum viewing angle for TV and movie viewing. Corner units can be the solution for rooms that cannot accommodate Free Standing or built in units due to the room configuration. We custom design the corner units to match your home furnishings, décor and shape of your room.

WALL UNITS

Our Wall Units/Free Standing designs resemble built-ins, but are more versatile. They are constructed of several separate pieces that are joined together with special features so they appear as one large piece of furniture once the installation is completed. Free Standing/Wall Units systems are designed to be disassembled and moved to another room or house if your needs change.
